Monday, June 7. 17c8.

London, June 7.

Yesterday arriv'd the Mail from Holland of Tuesday last.

From the Paris Gazette, dated June 9.

From the Camp of Figuières, May 19.

TH E 7th of this Month, the Duke de Noailles left Perpignan and encamp'd at Boulou. The 8th he pass'd the Mountains and encamp'd between la Jonquiere and Caplannie; and the 9th at eight in the Morning at Figuières. On this side of the River Muga were discover'd 50 of the Enemy's Horse and 400 Miquelets. The former ran away full speed, and the others to Estella near the Mountains; yet 12 of them with a Lieutenant were taken. The same Day Prince Henry of Darmstadt arriv'd at Gironne with a Regiment of Foot that came from Vic. The 10th that Prince advanc'd with Nebor, some other Officers and 80 Horse, to view our Camp; and he narrowly escap'd being met by a much stronger Party which were returning from an Excursion. The 11th the Duke de Noailles advanc'd with 500 Horse to Bascara on the Fluvia, and discover'd that the Enemy had beyond that Place near Oriols, the Regiment of Horse of Nebor of 10 Troops, and 2 others of 8 Troops each, but very weak. The 12th the Prince of Darmstadt retir'd to Gironne, and the 14th was follow'd by Nebor with the 3 Regiments, except 2 Troops which he left at Bascara, to give Notice of the Approach of our Army. The Duke de Noailles has receiv'd a Reinforcement of 2 Battalions from the Cerdagne. Several Pieces of Artillery, with Ammunition and Tools for breaking up Ground, are arriv'd at Roses by Sea from Roussillon.

Paris, June 9. We have Advice from Catalonia of the 29th of May, that the Duke de Noailles was advanc'd to Cervia on the Ter, in a spacious Plain within a League of Gironne. He found the Prince of Darmstadt encamp'd on the other side, with about 5000 Men of regular Troops and a like Number of Miquelets and Peasants; his Right extended to the Hill of Fort Rouge, and his Left under the Cannon of Gironne: He had in Front Pont Major, and had secur'd the Fords of the Ter by Intrenchments. The Duke de Noailles seeing no likelihood of attacking him successfully in that Disposition, contented himself with causing his Right to be cannonaded the 28th in the Morning; which succeeded so well, that a good Number of his Men being kill'd, he was oblig'd to draw off the rest out of the Reach of the Cannon. The Duke de Noailles finding great Abundance of Forrage where he is encamp'd, has resolv'd to stay there till 'tis all consumed, and at the same time to observe the Enemy and make a Diversion.

Paris, June 9. 'Tis advis'd from the Army under the Duke of Orleans, that the 13th of May he began his March with 20 Battalions and 18 Squadrons; the rest of the Army with the Artillery and Baggage being on the other side of the Ebro, under the Command of M. d' Arenne. On the March he found great Difficulties in passing many Defiles and Mountains almost impracticable; Yet he arriv'd the 20th in the Morning at Ginestar, within 4 Leagues of Tortosa, without any Opposition from the Enemy. He had order'd a Bridge to be made over the Ebro.

From the Paris Letter, dated June 8.

Paris, June 8. They write from Toulon, that the Frigates call'd the Parfaite, Silvie, and Medusa, which went Convoys with the last 50 Transports from the Coast of Provence, return'd to Toulon the 26th, having on the 22d met the Confederate Fleet commanded by Admiral Leake; with several large Ships of which Fleet they maintain'd a running Fight: But they can give no Account of the Transports laden with Provisions. We are in a very impatient Expectation to learn what became of those Transports.

From the Paris Gazette, dated June 9.

Paris, June 9. They write from the Netherlands, that the Duke of Burgundy having sent back the heavy Baggage to Mons, and caus'd Bread to be distributed to the Soldiers for 4 Days; march'd with the Army the Night between the 1st and 2d of this Month, and encamp'd with the Right at Genap, and the Left at Bois Seigneur Isaac: That as soon as the Enemy had Intelligence of it, they retir'd the same Day to Anderlecht; and the 3d they pass'd the Canal of Brussels and march'd towards Louvain.

Hague, June 12. Both the Armies in Brabant continue in their former Camps. The Duke of Marlborough is continuing to review his Forces, which he finds to his Satisfaction.

Letters from Francfort of the 7th of June, say the Elector of Hanover arriv'd there that Day: And the Elector of Mentz was expected there the 8th. 'Twas said his Electoral Highness will not go to the Army, till after he has confer'd with Prince Eugene, who was expected at Francfort the 9th or 10th. The Armies on the Upper Rhine, keep quiet still on both Sides. And those on the Moselle continue to draw to their respective Camps.

Paris, June 8. 'Affairs in Spain are in very great Disorder, for Want of Money and Artillery. The Duke of Orleans dispatch'd the 18th past, M. du St. Didier, one of his Gentlemen, with very pressing Letters for the King and for M. Des Maretz: He arriv'd the 29th at Night, and deliver'd a verbal Message to the King that was more urgent and more than the Letters. 'Tis certain the Duke of Orleans had no Money left; his Soldiers desert apace; and the 17th he had in his Camp but 16 Cannon and 3 Mortars: And M. du St. Didier has plainly intimated, that no Progress can be made on that side, unless the said Wants are speedily supplied. M. de Bay makes just the same Complaints: The last Letters the King had from him are of the 19th of May from the Chievra near Badajoz: In them he says, among other things, that his Army being almost wholly compos'd of Spaniards, Spaniards, he is afraid that if he be not forthwith furnish'd with Money, of which he is quite destitute, they will all desert. His Majesty has sent some Money to him and to the Duke of Orleans; but larger Supplies are requisite. I had like to have omitted to inform you, that the Soldiers refuse to follow the Duke of Orleans's Army, unless they be paid in Money; refusing to take Bills. The last Advices from the Duke de Noailles, left him on this side the Ter, the Enemy being too strongly posted for him to attempt to pass it; so that the Project of besieging Gironne is come to nothing; as 'tis apprehended our Designs are on the Upper Rhine.

London, June 7.

The Candidates at the Election for Westmorland were, James Grahme Esq; late a Member for Appleby, Robert Lowther Esq; late one of the Representatives of that County, and Dan. Wilton Esq; a Nephew of Sir William Flemings. The Poll when cast up appear'd to be thus, For Mr. Wilton 986. For Mr. Grahme 754. For Mr. Lowther 663. And therefore the two first were declar'd duly elected.
